

Red-rumped Agouti

Scientific name: Dasyprocta leporina

In Montserrat, agoutis are also called Wild or Mountain Rabbits, but they're actually a kind of rodent, not rabbits. Like all rodents, they have very strong teeth, which can gnaw through hard roots and nuts. They also eat fallen fruit, and can spread plant seeds to new places.

